and Pearl Resnick Dean of The Rabbinical School, JTS

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 2018

We have recently witnessed a worrisome rise in the denigration and demonization of groups of people. Should hate speech be censored? Can that lead to negative consequences? What is the best way to respond? And how should we approach these questions in the context of historical and current anti-Semitism and Nazism?

Following her presentation, Ms. Strossen and Rabbi Nevins will explore comparative perspectives on harmful speech and free speech in American and Jewish law.

Cosponsored by the Louis Finkelstein Institute for Religious and Social Studies of JTS
